Antique Registers

Dating back to the late 1800's these registers are truly beautiful pieces, fully deserving of their prominent placement in front hallways, dining rooms, and the like. When we get them they are usually caked in a century of paint and the intricate patterns are barely discernable. We sandblast them to reveal their underlying beauty, and then give them a durable powder coat finish so they can be enjoyed for another hundred years.

Restored grates start at around $125. If you have antique registers of your own that need an overhaul, we would be happy to provide the service for about $50 to $75. Below are just some of the many different patterns, styles and sizes that we come across. Our selection is always changing, and you are best to come in with your measurements to see what will work for you.

TIP

When shopping for a register make sure to measure the hole, or boot size, and not the overall size of an existing floor grate. There is usually an overlap of an inch or so all the way around and sizes can vary wildly, although rounding off to the nearest inch is a safe bet.
